AHC Overview

AHC is a non-profit paediatric healthcare organisation with a mission of improving healthcare for all Cambodian children. AHC has grown from a small hospital with just two beds in 1999 to become the leading, well-established, paediatric healthcare organisation that it is today, treating around 150,000 children annually.

Our compassionate holistic model puts patients at the centre of its design to treat the whole child, contributing to a more sustainable health outcome for each child. Our strategic goals focus on:

- Being a leading care centre, providing specialist services not found elsewhere in Cambodia to babies and children from across the country
- Building capacity in Cambodia's healthcare system that extends beyond AHC's walls
- Running the organisation with exemplary governance, being accountable to our stakeholders and maintaining the highest standards of transparency

At the local level, our focus is on strengthening the healthcare system by building the capacity of healthcare workers.

At the national and global level, we are building on our experiences and best-practices to influence policy and add to the international knowledge base on child health.
